SHOT in

ORLANDO

The insanity of it. I could write mad trains, try to understand. We drop drones, we kill innocent people. Yet when our innocents are slaughtered we rush to take the higher moral ground. Our innocents are the victims in a never ending zeal for combat between madmen.

If ever I perceive prejudice in my heart, I feel it for radical extremist Muslims. ~~They~~ Yet, when I go down the argument... they are a warring culture, well, that doesn't satisfy, because America + Americans falls of our higher moral ground, but the facts do not prove that. Ask black people, or Latinos, or Native Americans.

Ask the families of the innocents killed in drone strikes

These drone strikes are led by this African American, beloved President who seems so hip + cool.

This latest episode is yet one more incident in which the innocent are collateral damage in the wars between madmen.

We can stand against this action, but we, as Americans, have no framed the right to take the moral high ground here.

In the midst of 'too much' at 29 pieces, an elderly dog who can't walk to go outside, my own aching legs, low energy, today is the today. Today is the day I/we have been working towards — the presentation to the city of the Piece 24 art. We have learned how to do big, public art, the vision is about to begin.

There should be enthusiasm and joy at this moment. What's wrong with me? I feel grief almost, sadness at the world around us, (no wonder the Tony's bring such joy - a world within a world where art, love, support, interdependency lives.)

I feel inadequacy that art really does or can make a difference in in our consciousness.

Yet, in this life, we stand for something.

Challenged the team to embrace the unifying concept: To be better than what any one of us could be.

Request made to put Bryn down.
I am on the verge of tears today.
I must pull out of my own let-down, doubts, aches, pains, and shift into the infinite. Out of my little self and into SELF.

- For today's presentation of piece 24 to the office of Cultural Affairs, what is the essential message?

This was done cooperatively, with students + adults, diversity, with love + inspiration in the room.

We held together as a group, and have helped lift each other to our highest self.

I find it fitting touching + touching + meaningful. very poignant that we are here today — the day after the worst shooting in U.S. history.

humbly a little nervously offering a beautiful sculpture to the city that ~~has~~ has as its unifying concept an earnest and ~~strong~~ direct call for all of us to be an agent of to respect and love.

This piece stands to show who we are as individuals who we ~~and~~ are as the city of Dallas.

I have asked Dr. Roark to come today to put Bryn down. Her legs are weak. She can barely make it outdoors. One day soon, I would not be able to get her outdoors, so I want to do this before we get to that point. For the work given to me to do.

Grateful to God.

The house is quiet with Bryn gone. And Rosemary came yesterday to help clean - all the rugs that've been out, to help ~~her~~ Bryn walk, the fun everywhere.

It was very hard - and sad - to see Bryn with bright eyes one moment - and then gone - at my request. She could barely walk, but she was still eating, smiling, barking.

For the first time in six years I sneeze, and there isn't a fit of barking.

Some pets - when they've gone — have left me with the deepest grief I'd experienced up to that point:
- when Rosie disappeared
- when Charlie was hit by a car
- when Alice died
- Betsy, Andi (terrible) I still choke up.
- Emma
- Ben
- O'Malley
- Sylvester

others - I love - but there wasn't that same deep bonding
- Missy
- Woody
- Dodie
- and now Bryn.

She was a sweet girl. A funny girl. A companion.

She also barked incessantly. Shed more than any other animal we've befriended.

My life is editing down.

The Piece 24 has a home.

Saturday June 25, 2016

when talking with Kelly on Thursday, he said he could come home in July after the high school reunion and before his Mom moves.

I prickled.

And the next morning felt restless and nervous about that... about having his energy, his compulsions, around.

On the one hand, I enjoy his company, relaxed time together; on the other hand, it has been such a relief to have the cloud of his compulsive energy and

At times, it feels that we have come to the end of our road together, and that it is time to part ways.

Other times, it feels silly to let his samskaras hold that much power.

What would be my requests?

JUNE 27, 2016

The last weeks have held the pressures of acceptance of Piece 24 on public property, the launch of the Respect Pledge City Council Monthly, Cultural Affairs Commission. Now that this is done, and all went well, I have felt like a sleepy bear. I just want to sleep.

I've been considering what life would be like with Kelly away, what life will be like with Kelly back.

I don't feel that I have pillars of support here ... family ... friends.

~~Need to work~~

This sleepiness may be letdown from the tension of getting the space secured. It may be poor health, extra weight, sadness. I've felt sadness since talking with Hope, since Prince's death, and of course this most recent shooting at the gay nightclub. And Kelly... and the seeming hopelessness of his compulsions.

This artist... Albert Scherbarth. We are depending on him to do piece 24.

He sends unsophisticated, obnoxious emails.

He submits insurance that wouldn't actually protect us.

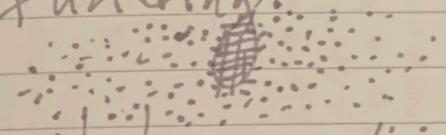
What is his perspective?

Why does his behavior make me prickle?

What is the best solution?

I have been unsophisticated in the past. I've acted like a jerk... with the DMV, with DART... in both cases, I felt taken advantage of. In the case of the DMV, they were underpaying women.

DART was just working at the pace they could due to funding.



He said he was "intimided" by the presentation at the office of Cultural Affairs.

Find other solutions.

People reveal themselves.

This thing of finding people to work with on the sculpture is time consuming. There has to be another solution going forward.

BLUE. Blue in honor of Dallas police. Blue in honor of the emotions of the last few days.

12 Police officers shot in downtown Dallas. 5 Dir. 4 DPD. 1 DART officer.

Need quiet time. A city in mourning. Bereived. Grieving. Raw grief. Pure grief.

We had been in Deep Ellum. DaVerse Lounge. when we heard of the shooting. Took an hour to get kids back to Oak Cliff. Huge police presence.

Horror. Grief. For those killed. For families, the police. Our city. This nation. This insane nation.

Founded by maniacally competitive, jealous racists, misogynists, drunks, radicalized for violence.

And we idealize it according to the beautiful words in the constitution, the Declaration of Independence, Bill of Rights.

But THEY were gun + bayonet toting nuts + so are we.

Open OUR hearts

So many
Our hearts are broken wide open right now.
May they stay open.
If it takes such cruelty to bring us into

Today, on Sunday, the day of rest, the day of worship, we bring the communion of broken hearts.

a communion of grief, let's use this. Let's use this ocean of grief to make a sea change, to right this ship that has drifted into a hurricane of blame, 'othering', and raw hatred.

If grief has the power to bring us together, then what do we do — now — that we have been brought to our knees. on our knees in humility.

Look at each other - we are convulsed in tears and sorrow. We DO have the power to change,

We can fight the insanity
of current gun laws.
We can fight for equity and justice.

We can check our selfish agendas at the door and listen more than we talk, come together + work
for the greater good.

We are NOT powerless

in this situation of unleashed violence and brutality,
we can teach our children.
Open our hearts.
Is heart break the dramatic means needed anymore to open our hearts to one another?
While our hearts are open broken... now is the time.

while we share the cruel brutal reality— now, we all have something in common.

Most - while we are so can let the light in.

It is not a question of whether it is possible.
Do we have the resolve?
Are there enough of us who will step up our game to do the hard, + smart work to
end this violence?
[This is the payback for war, slavery, hatred]

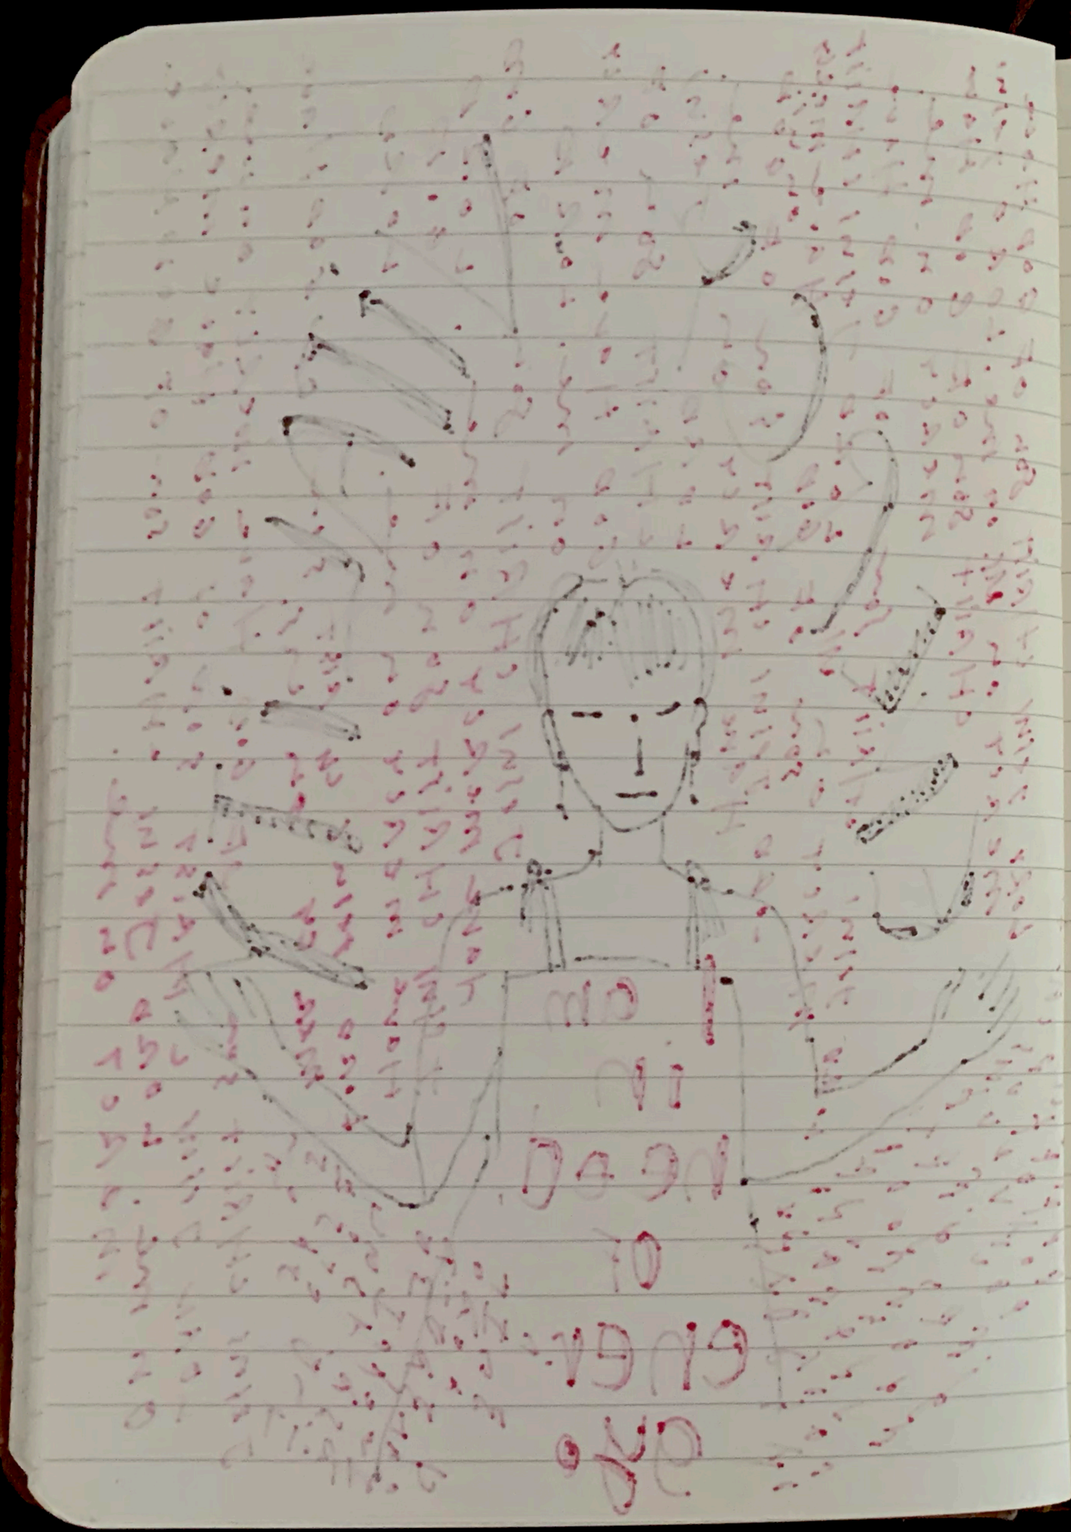
I am in need of energy.



JULY 10, 2016.

In pain today. Literally- my legs are stiff and aching. My heart is aching. Broken for this world. for human beings. My thinking changes from "Will we ever learn?" to "We will never learn."

This week in Dallas it was about race. A few weeks ago it was about gays, or abortion, or immigration. Let us use this time.

Place a seal

Place a seal on our resolve,

We are on our knees. Take us down to the top root. Our hearts are in pieces. We partake in a particularly cruel communion. In violence, the aftermath of violence, our raw grief is one pure language not

We haven't risen above-
we've been taken below the

The shootings of police officers in Dallas, in Baton Rouge Shootings of black men. The hatred spewed at Hillary. Too much. Enough. No great leaders. Great leaders may be impossible in our twitter/Facebook/ instant culture. Barack Obama expresses himself beautifully. Has he been able to be a great leader? NO. Mike Rawlings may be a great leader. Chief Brown.

Judge Jenkins.
But in the national arena?
Hillary, I fear, is too divisive, too monotone, too old even. Bernie Sanders—maybe, but too old.
In the 1960's, the great leaders were assassinated.
I pray to you that we do not go backwards to that.

I have been on the verge of tears, or in tears, since Prince died this year... then shootings in Orlando, terrorist murders in France, the police shootings in Dallas, the Republican convention, and my annual physical the same day that Donald Trump speaks. So watching stuff th My legs hurt. And I'm only 64. Feeling very discouraged and depressed.

I feel burdened and hopeless regarding 29 Pieces. And this ~~world~~ people feels repetitive and ridiculous. This is the perspective of age... sadness in the repetition of it all.. Feel defeated.
Wisdom, guidance?
Focus on health + wellness. Stop watching stuff that poisons you.

i would like every one of you to remember this: we are not alone. This is not a world of chance. We are surrounded by creative powers, as surrounded as we are by air and light and gravitation. it is only when we fail to ally ourselves with the forces of light that they are unable to support us. if we give our whole-hearted support, love will triumph. This remembrance brings faith; it brings hope; it brings the certitude of victory.
